

The JCCNV Bodzin Art Gallery

The Psychology of Scapegoating

April 6–May 21, 2015

This exhibit commemorates Yom Ha'Shoah and this year's Jewish Community Relations Council's (JCRC) annual Northern Virginia Holocaust commemoration (April 19 at the J).

Gallery Artists

Lilianne Milgrom

Judith Peck

Cherie M. Redlinger

Shana Spiegel

Liz Wolf

Lilianne Milgrom created multi-media banners called J'accuse! This work contains multiple references to anti-Semitism throughout history. Judith Peck's multi-media portraits have an ethereal glow emerging from their backgrounds. Cherie M. Redlinger's multi-media construction reflects G-d Is; I Am; I am a child, thru the life cycle, potentially ending with I am a scapegoat. Shana Spiegel's quilts express her mother's Holocaust experiences in her fiber art – "Facing the Past, Healing the Future." Liz Wolf, a printmaker, has taken two biblical stories surrounding the Passover saga to interpret the theme of scapegoating.

In the Showcases

Yonina Blech-Hermoni

Bobbi Premack Gorban

Linda Gissen

Yonina Blech-Hermoni has created memorial candle holders as a way to "...see through to the soul of the departed...yet know them to be held and wrapped in warmth." Bobbi Premack Gorban chose mixed media fiber arts to create pieces with respect to the concept of scapegoating. Linda Gissen spoke with Holocaust survivors as inspiration. Observing the vicissitudes of history led her to create hand sculpted pieces of welded metals, enamels and glass.

A conversation with artist Lilianne Milgrom | Monday, May 11, 6:15pm | Free Admission

Can Art play a role in the ever-growing divide between religions and cultures?

Hosted by the JCCNV Cultural Arts Department. In conjunction with the exhibit The Psychology of Scapegoating.

Artwork is for show and sale.

jccnvarts.org

Fine Arts Coordinator | Irene Gavin | 703.537.3063 | Irene.Gavin@jccnv.org

Jewish Community Center of Northern Virginia

8900 Little River Turnpike • Fairfax, VA 22031

www.jccnv.org • Phone: 703.323.0880 • Fax: 703.323.1993

Partner Agency of
The Jewish Federation
OF GREATER WASHINGTON

